

THE LAST BIG MARKET.

The market last Fall was looked upon as a lively deal made by the insiders to whet the appetite of speculation and clear some money. Such was not the case. The deal begun and ended with the public. The insiders had nothing to do with the rise and it was as much of a puzzle to them as anybody. The big mining men contemplated no deal until the water pipes were all in place, the gas was driven from Con. Virginia and the water mills in Six Mile Canyon were all ready to crush ore.

The closing of the contract for the big water pipes, for something over a million and a half was the thing that set the pulse of speculation throbbing at the Bay. People argued that these pipes would not have been ordered without the heavy mining men having considered the ore in sight sufficient to warrant at large outlay.

The mud hens started the ball rolling and in a few weeks the servant girls and dishwashers were in for every cent they had. In two weeks over four million of dollars was drawn from the Hibernian Bank in San Francisco to invest in stocks. This large amount of money started the craze for stocks which so astonished the big operators, that Jones let Crown Point go at $7 and lost the control, and Con. Virginia slipped temporarily from the hands of the "inside" at $12 and $14 a share. They expected to buy it back at $10 but it went five times that value in no time.

Had Frankel & Co. stood honest and not failed, Con. Virginia would soon have perched on the $100 notch. The market was a regular old time rise based on theory and the money of the masses. When the failures in Virginia city were succeeded by others at the Bay the whole fabric tumbled like a dissolving view and it was a case of the survival of the fittest. Now there is twice the amount of ore in sight than there was then and the mills nearer completion but still no remarkable boom. The rumor that John Mackay considers that Con. Virginia will pay dividends for some time is probably what has given stocks a temporary stiffness.

PACIFIC COAST ITEMS.

—J. Patten, while despondent, ended his life at Stockton yesterday, with a dose of morphine.

—C. E. Crocker sold his ranch a few miles East of Delano, Kern county, on Saturday, for $40,000, one year ago it was offered for half that sum.

—A dry cyclone passed over Nogales, A. T., yesterday unroofing several houses and two slight earthquakes were felt. A shock is reported from Benson also.

—The Coroner's jury, in the case of the shooting of J. P. Burton by Martin, a barkeeper at Salt Lake, Saturday, has returned a verdict that the shooting was malicious and premeditated.

—The Georgetown Gazette says: It is estimated that about $50,000 worth of gold-dust is sold at this place and Georgia Slide during the year. Of this amount the Chinese sell about one-half.

—Samuel Massey, while grading a road about seven miles from Kennett, Shasta county, Saturday, had his skull crushed by a falling rock which had been loosened by a dog playing on the hillside above him.

—Suits will be at once commenced in the Superior Court of Mendocino county against several parties with whom it has been impossible to agree on the prices they are to be paid for a right of way for the Ukiah and Cloverdale railroad.

—A railroad man high in authority says he has good reasons for saying the National Railway Commission will within a few days, give notice that the suspension of the long-and-short-haul clause will be rescinded July 21st.

—The Elko Independent whose editor is a good judge of cattle says that the Holstein cow "Black Queen" will soon give enough milk to supply the whole town of Carson.
